

Custody and Visitation

The amount of time parents share with their child (ren) is a key factor when calculating child support amounts. Therefore, it is important for parents to keep records such as a calendar detailing these timeframes. When or if the time comes where a child support order needs to be established or changed, parents will be asked to provide this information.

Although services provided by our office do not include custody and visitation matters, we have provided several resources below for parents to take advantage of:
